II. How We Use Cookies and Similar Technologies

Devices, mobile applications, and windows applications may use local storage technologies such as cookies, pixel tags, and web beacons. We treat information collected through cookies and similar technologies as non-personal information. However, if local laws treat IP addresses or similar identification marks as personal information, we also treat such identification marks as personal information.

A. Cookies

A cookie is a text file stored by a web server on a computer or mobile device, and the content of a cookie can be retrieved and read-only by the server that created the cookie. Cookies are unique to the browser or mobile application you are using. The text in a cookie often consists of identifiers, site names, and some numbers and characters.

Sometimes, we store cookies on computers or mobile devices to improve user experience, including the following scenarios:

(1) Login and verification. When you log in to a website, the “ session-based” cookies ensure that your visit to this site functions as smoothly as possible.

(2) Store your preferences and settings. Websites can use cookies to save settings, such as computer or mobile device language, fonts, shopping carts, and other browsers;

(3) Interest-based advertising. We use cookies to collect information about your online activities and discover your interest and provide you with the most relevant advertisements.

(4) Statistical analysis. With single-user cookies, we can collect information about your use of our website and other applications, such as recorded visits (using session cookies) or multiple visits (using permanent cookies).

You can manage or delete cookies at your preference. For details, visit AboutCookies.org. You can clear all the cookies stored on your computer, and most current web browsers provide the option of blocking cookies. However, blocking cookies will require you to change your user settings every time you visit our website.

If you clear cookies, you will need to change your settings the next time you visit our websites. Note that some of our services require the use of cookies. Disabling cookies may affect your use of some or all functions of these services.

B. Web beacons/ pixel tags

In addition to cookies, we and certain third parties also use web beacons and pixel tags on our websites. A web beacon is usually an electronic image embedded in a website or email that can be used to recognize a cookie on your device when you view a webpage or email. Pixel tags allow us to send emails in a format that you can read and allow us to know if the email has been opened.

We and some third parties use this type of technology for a variety of purposes, including analyzing service usage (used in conjunction with cookies) and providing content and advertisements that are more in line with your needs. For example, the email we send you may contain a click-through URL that links to the content of the website. If you click on the link, we will track the click to help us understand your preferences and improve customer service. If you do not want your activities to be tracked in this way, you can unsubscribe from our mailing list at any time.

C. Other Local Storage

We and some third parties may use other local storage technologies, for example, local shared objects (also called "Flash cookies") and HTML5 local storage, in certain products and services. Similar to cookies, these technologies store information on your device and can record some information about your activities and preferences. However, these technologies may use different media from cookies. Therefore, you may not be able to control them using standard browser tools and settings.

D. Do Not Track

Many web browsers provide a Do Not Track function that can release Do Not Track requests to websites. Currently, major Internet standards organizations have not established policies to specify how websites should handle these requests. If you enable Do Not Track in your browser, all of our websites will respect your selection.

III. How Can We Entrust, Share, Transfer and Publicly Disclose Your Personal Data

A. Entrusted processing

In some cases, we will entrust other companies to process your personal information on our behalf. For example, companies that handle hotlines, send emails, and provide technical support on our behalf, these companies can only use your personal information to provide services to you on our behalf.

We will sign a strict confidentiality agreement or personal information processing clause with the entrusted party, and require them to handle personal information by this statement and take relevant confidentiality and security measures.

B. Sharing

Sharing refers to the process in which we provide personal information to other personal information controllers, and both parties have independent control over the personal information. We will not share your personal information externally, except in the following cases:

1. Sharing in the case of obtaining explicit consent: After obtaining your explicit consent, we will share the information within the scope of your authorization with a third party designated by you;

2. Sharing under statutory circumstances: We may share your personal information with external parties by laws and regulations, the need for litigation dispute resolution, or the requirements of administrative or judicial authorities by the law;

3. Shared with our affiliated companies: Your information may be shared within our affiliated companies. We will only share your information within our affiliated companies for specific, clear, and legal purposes, and will only share information necessary to provide services. For example, to avoid repeated registration when registering an account, we need to verify the global uniqueness of the account to be registered.

4. Sharing with business partners: We may share your order information, account information, device information, and location information with partners and other third parties to ensure the smooth completion of the services provided to you. However, we will only share your personal information for legal, legitimate, necessary, specific, and clear purposes, and will only share personal information necessary to provide services. Our partners include:

(1) Third-party sellers and third-party developers: Some of our services are directly provided to you by third parties, and we must share transaction-related information with third parties to fulfill your needs for purchasing goods or services from them. For example, when you purchase products from other developers in the app market, we must share necessary information about you with the developers before the transaction can be completed.

(2) Suppliers of goods or technical services. We may share your personal information with third parties that support our functions, including third parties that provide us with or provide infrastructure technical services, logistics and distribution services, payment services, data processing services, etc. The purpose of our sharing of this information is to achieve the function of the service. For example, we must share your order information with the logistics service provider to arrange delivery; or we need to share your order number and order amount with a third-party payment institution to achieve It confirms your payment instructions and completes the payment, etc.

Under 3-4, we will sign strict confidentiality agreements with companies, organizations, and individuals that share personal information, requiring them to handle personal information by this statement and adopt relevant confidentiality and security measures.

C. Transfer

Transfer refers to the process of transferring the control of personal information from us to another personal information controller. We will not transfer your personal information to any company, organization, or individual, except in the following cases:

1. Transfer with explicit consent: After obtaining your explicit consent, we will transfer your personal information to other parties;
2. When a merger, acquisition, or bankruptcy liquidation is involved, if the transfer of personal information is involved, we will require the new company or organization that holds your personal information to continue to be bound by this statement, otherwise, we will require the company or organization to re-submit to You seek authorization and consent.

D. Public disclosure

We will only publicly disclose your personal information under the following circumstances:

1. After obtaining your explicit consent;
2. Public disclosure based on law or reasonable basis: We may publicly disclose your information when required by law, legal procedures, litigation, or public and government authorities;

E.Exceptions for obtaining prior authorization and consent when sharing, transferring and publicly disclosing personal information

In the following situations, sharing, transferring, and publicly disclosing your personal information does not require your prior authorization and consent:

1. Related to national security and national defense security;
2. Related to public safety, public healthy, and major public interests;
3. Related to a criminal investigation, prosecution, trial, and execution of judgments;
4. To protect your or other individuals' life, property, and other major legal rights and interests, but it is difficult to obtain the consent of the person;
5. Your personal information disclosed to the public on your own;
6. Collect personal information from legally publicly disclosed information, such as legal news reports, government information disclosure, and other channels.

According to laws and regulations, sharing and transferring de-identified personal information, and ensuring that the data recipient cannot restore and re-identify the subject of personal information does not belong to the external sharing, transfer, and public disclosure of personal information. Storage and processing will not need to notify you separately and obtain your consent.

IV. How We Protect Your Personal Data

We attach great importance to the security of your data and have adopted standard industry practices to protect your data and prevent it from unauthorized access, disclosure, use, modification, damage, or loss. To this end, we take the following measures:

(1) We take reasonable and feasible measures to ensure that the personal data collected is minimal and relevant to what is necessary for relation to the purposes for which they are processed. We retain your data for no longer than is necessary for the purposes stated in this Statement and privacy notice of specific product or service unless extending the retention period is required or permitted by law.

(2) We use a range of technologies such as cryptographic technologies to ensure the confidentiality of data in transmission. We implement trusted protection mechanisms to protect data and data storage servers from attacks.

(3) We deploy access control mechanisms to ensure that only authorized personnel can access your data. In addition, we control the number of authorized personnel and implement hierarchical permission management on them based on service requirements and personnel levels.

(4) We strictly select business partners and service providers and incorporate personal data protection requirements into commercial contracts, audits, and appraisal activities.

(5) We hold security and privacy protection training courses, tests, and publicity activities to raise employees' data protection awareness.

We are committed to protecting your data. Nevertheless, no security measure is perfect and no product, service, website, data transfer, computing system, or network connection is secure.

To cope with possible risks, such as personal data leakage, damage, and loss, we have developed several mechanisms and control measures, clearly defined the rating standards of security incidents and vulnerabilities, and corresponding processing procedures. We have established a dedicated emergency response team to implement security planning, loss reduction, analysis, locating, and remediation, and to perform tracking operations with related departments based on security incident handling regulations and requirements.

If any personal data incident occurs, we will notify you, under relevant legal and regulatory requirements, of the basic information about the security incident and its possible impact, measures that we have taken or will take, suggestions about active defense, and risk mitigation, and remedial measures. The notification may take the form of an email, text message, push notification, etc. If it is difficult to notify data subjects one by one, we will take appropriate and effective measures to release a security notice. In addition, we will also report the handling status of personal data security incidents as required by supervisory authorities.
